ABSTRACT

A method for converting lower temperature dissipated heat to other useful energy and apparatus therefor. Heat energy is transferred to a fluid contained within a conduit, and natural convection of the fluid is utilized to transfer kinetic energy of the heat to another type of energy such as electrical energy.

09994179.112601